

IT'S ABOUT TIME: A CHILD'S PERSPECTIVE

Join Cecelia Karpoff, a founder of Potomac Crescent and long-time Waldorf early childhood teacher, for a lively discussion on time. It seems we are always pressured by time in one way or another. "Isn't it about time this child is in bed?" "There isn't time to play now!" "Isn't it about time this child stopped sucking his thumb?" Can you remember back to the time when the summer or even one day stretched out endlessly for you? Time is experienced very differently by the young child; for him/her the urgency we feel about time has no meaning. We will look at time in some new ways that may help us better to understand and work with our children.
